THE PIVOT POINT PROCESS — STEP ONE

My Primary Pivot Point

> Everything else in your Pivot Point Process builds outward from this point — and should remain aligned with it.
>
> — THE PIVOT POINT EFFECT, CHAPTER 5

A short, personal statement of who you are. It doesn't need to be an acronym, and it doesn't need to be permanent — it needs only to be true enough, right now, that you can measure a choice against it.

> FROM THE AUTHOR
>
> I invite you to strongly consider LRKG as your Primary Pivot Point. I have found these words to powerfully articulate the highest idea of primary purpose. The ideas these words engender can facilitate peaceful outcomes in the most difficult circumstances. They are foundational words that translate similarly into every language and culture, and they are, as previously mentioned, irreducible.
>
> These words, in my opinion, are some of the most inspired words in our language. Say them to yourself a few times and see if they feel true to you. Love, Respect, Kindness, and Gratitude.

My Three Reasons

> A reason is what a goal is usually standing in for.
>
> — THE PIVOT POINT EFFECT, CHAPTER 6

The enduring purposes that get you up and live each day. Test each one against your Primary Pivot Point — a reason should support and reinforce your foundation, not pull against it.

01 REASON ONE

How does this support my Primary Pivot Point?

02 REASON TWO

How does this support my Primary Pivot Point?

03 REASON THREE

My Gifts and Talents

> A gift doesn't have to be rare to count — it has to be real and usable.
>
> — THE PIVOT POINT EFFECT, CHAPTER 7

The actual strengths you bring to each of your Three Reasons. This list is meant to grow — add to it whenever you notice more of what you bring to the table.

My Living Life List

> What you see today is simply a snapshot of where it stands right now.
>
> — THE PIVOT POINT EFFECT, CHAPTER 8

What fully living each of your Three Reasons looks like, in specifics. This list is never meant to be finished — add to it for as long as it takes.
